Hi Alice,

I believe we were going to have around 25 questions in each set if there is enough but if there's not 20 is fine as long as we can get all the questions included.

I have 2 full sets of cards at home with all of the questions included from the documents you created to print before in the 'First set of prototype cards to print' folder on Github. I can't remember if we made any more question cards to be included when playtesting since then so I'm not sure if I'm missing any. I currently don't have any tokens or the voting cards but I have everything else I believe.

I have:

- Question cards
- Liar and truth cards (the ones handed out at the start of the round, I don't think I have any of the ones used for voting)
- 1-6 player cards

It would be a good idea to do that during the game jam as you said I think, so we can make sure there's a good variety of questions within each set.

Thanks,
Beth

Hi Beth,

I'd just like to be clear on the cards we already have and the ones I need to print.

So a whole set (for our current iteration) includes - (for a maximum of 6 players)

- (20?) question cards
- 2 Liar cards + 4 Truth cards
- 6 x 1-6 Player cards
- 6 x 2 Liar and 4 Truth Voting cards
- 60 point tokens (10 for each player)

I have my whole set that was prepared last week, I have just prepared one other whole set which needs question to go with it, and I have 2 whole sets ready for you to cut up for this weeks tasks, which does include questions.

What is included in your set? I can print off anything else that's needed so we will have 5 sets in total. Shall I do one more whole set so we have 6? This would mean that we can give out 4 sets over the Christmas break and keep one each for ourselves if we can playtest with friends.

If you like, we can gather all of the question cards and spread them evenly throughout the sets with different categories when we have our game jam.
